cold smoked fish, cold meats and cheeses, sweet and savory baked goods, hot and cold cereals, fresh fruit and skyr (Icelandic yogurt). Hot breakfast potatoes, bacon, sausage and eggs are usually offered as well. Some lunches and dinners are also served buffet style, while others offer a limited-choice menu. Lunches and dinners are balanced meals, usually including an abundant selection of fish and seafood, beef, lamb and pasta or rice entrées; soup and sandwiches, salads, burgers, fish and chips; and desserts and fruit, along with a chance to try Icelandic specialties. While the menus have been planned to give you a taste of typical Icelandic cuisine, they are often complimented with limited American fare. Given the nature of group travel, we regret that à la carte menu choices are not always available. Children-friendly choices are available at all meals. Menu items are subject to change due to the availability and seasonality of foods. If you have any questions or concerns about dining at any time during your vacation, your Adventure Guides will be happy to assist you.
